DCS 6000 Digital Conference System & Digital Infrared

The OSCE - The Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe is the world's largest regional security organization with 55 participating States. In 2005, Slovenia held the Chairmanship including hosting the 13th Ministerial Council, at the "Commercial Fairground" in Ljubljana. In total 10 conference rooms incl. the plenary hall, a press conference room and a press area were in use.

A Complete Digital Conference System

AVC-Group in Slovenia and Informationsteknik, Denmark provided the complete digital DIS conference system including 220 portable conference microphones with built-in channel selectors, 8 channels simultaneous interpretation, and digital infrared language distribution system for the remaining audience. 1800 digital, wireless receivers were in use.

Great Success for the Digital Language Distribution

The OSCE meeting was hitherto the biggest event for the digital infrared system to show its strength with perfect audio coverage. Both the technical installation and the DCS 6000 features were highly praised by the Slovenian National TV, the interpreters and the organizer.
