About 350 legislators from NATO member, partner and observer countries, including delegations from Afghanistan, Algeria, Israel, Japan, Kazakhstan and Pakistan, met at the Laugardalshöllin Exhibition Centre, Iceland to discuss major security issues on the Alliance's Agenda.

The meeting was held in a sports venue, where Nyherji - the DIS distributor in Iceland arranged and handled all technical equipment such as phones, faxes, computers, sound, video and the DCS 6000 conference equipment and provided all technicians, including one from DIS, who helped to program the DCS equipment.

The venue holds two meeting rooms and two big halls - one was divided into two separate meeting rooms and the other was used as offices. Four meeting rooms in total were used all 3 days, and one press room. A Plenary meeting ended the session, and Nyherji had to change the setup in the room.

Each room was provided with 7 channels' interpretation, 50 - 110 microphones, appr. 90 infrared receivers and 6 interpreter booths. At the plenary meeting 230 infrared receivers were in use.

This is the largest conference that Nyherji has managed since the beginning of their rental business back in 1968 and they can proudly tell that the equipment worked very well, nothing went wrong, and everybody was very happy about their work.
